Head of Here To Be Grant program through lululemon athletica 2019–2021 for local community in Greenville, SC. Through Here to Be, our goal was to seed and sustain the work of community-led organizations that actively remove barriers to wellbeing in their communities and serve those most impacted by systemic inequities. We aimed to provide philanthropic resources to organizations that may not traditionally have had access to them and welcome a diverse group of new organizations.

My interest in serving on the Museum Commission is:

I am eager to serve on the Greenville County Museum of Art Commission because of my deep passion for the arts and my belief in the transformative power of art education. With an Associate's degree in Visual Arts, I have a foundational understanding of the artistic process and the importance of cultural programs in our community.

I understand that serving on the Greenville County Museum of Art Commission involves overseeing the operations of the museum and ensuring it fulfills its mission to collect, preserve, and educate the public about American visual art. As a member of the Commission, I would play a vital role in guiding the museum's strategic direction, supporting its educational and cultural programs, and advocating for community engagement.

Describe your strengths or skills that would positively contribute to the Museum Commission:

Strong communication skills, experience in community outreach, and a commitment to promoting art appreciation and education. I am committed to ensuring the museum remains a vibrant center for collection, preservation, and education in visual art. I would advocate for diverse programming that engages a wide audience and supports local artists.

My community topics of concern that relate to the Museum Commission are:

I envision expanding free programs that focus on art history education, making the museum more accessible to all members of our community. I believe that enhancing public understanding of visual art fosters empathy and encourages community stewardship.
